

Anthony Amodeo Product Manager, Real-Time Payments

ANTHONY AMODEO is a product manager in the Global Transaction Services Core Cash Management team, with specific responsibility for the development, launch, and commercialization of U.S. Real-Time Payments. Since summer 2017, Anthony has contributed to Bank of America's effort to join the first new clearing system in the United States in over 40 years, while developing a globally consistent strategy for faster payment capabilities around the world.

After completing the Global Banking and Markets Veteran Associate Program, Anthony joined the bank in 2013 as a Liquidity Product Sales Specialist. His liquidity coverage responsibilities included non-bank financial institutions, public sector entities, and the full spectrum of industries and client segments in Canada. In 2015, he became the COO for Large Corporate North America treasury sales, facilitating the execution of the regional business strategy.

A graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy with a BS in aeronautical engineering, Anthony served as a naval officer and helicopter pilot for 11 years before starting his career in finance. While on active duty, he earned an MBA from the University of San Diego. Since joining the bank, he has earned Series 7 and 63 and the Certified Treasury Professional (CTP) qualifications.

Anthony currently lives with his young family in Garden City, New York. He is a co-chair of the New York chapter of the Military Support and Assistance Group (MSAG), which contributes to the firm's culture of diversity and inclusion. He also volunteers as a Blue and Gold Officer, responsible for guiding local candidates through the Naval Academy application process.